

Peace Pilgrim Arrives in City

Miss Peace Pilgrim arrived in Albuquerque Friday, walking the 18 miles from Bernalillo in a half day. She plans to remain a week, addressing various groups on her formula for a peaceful world.

Peace Pilgrim—a silver haired woman in Navy blue slacks and shirt—refuses to disclose her real name.

"Peace Pilgrim, that's my name now," she says. "The name I used to have wouldn't do anybody any good. If you addressed a letter to that name it would just go to the dead letter office."

She has a three-point program she believes would result in universal peace: 1. For the world, development of a world language to be taught as a second language in all schools of the world; 2. For the United States, establishment of a peace department in the government "to do extensive research in peaceful ways of resolving conflicts;" 3. For individuals, "commend the good wherever you find it to give it strength."

She said public meetings she will address will be the Central Methodist Young Adults at 8 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Geneva House, 1820 Las Lomas NE.

The woman reports she has walked 15,900 miles in the last seven years.

She will be the house guest here of the Misses Marion and Catherine Crissey, 909 Seventh NW.
